To day, there are many professions, and every person faces a difficult choice, deciding which sphere of activity to link their lives, where to study and where to go to work. Work - this is a huge component of a person's life, in this regard, it is necessary to approach this issue with great responsibility. When a person finds his vocation, work turns into a fascinating process.

I chose one of those professions that require mental load. In the future I want to become an accountant. In many respects this was helped by the example of my mother. She worked for 25 years at the enterprise, which carries out urban, suburban and intercity transportation of passengers.

An accountant is an accounting specialist who deals with financial accounting.

The accountant is the specialist without which no enterprise, both commercial and public, can work. That is why we can confidently say that the profession of an accountant is in high demand for today.

Profession history

Despite the development of the profession abroad, in the post-Soviet space only since the beginning of the 90s of the last century the demand for accountants began to grow. Today, according to statistics, 95% of accountants are women, only half of whom have higher education. Career ladder is represented by such positions as chief accountant, his deputy and ordinary accountants.

Features of the profession

The accountant does a lot of work. The duties of this specialist include the maintenance of accounting, tax, warehouse accounting, cash book. Drawing up of reports, estimates, reconciliation acts. Maintenance of wages, sick leave sheets, business trips, compensations. Preparation and submission of reports to the tax organization and various funds.

Knowledge of accounting transactions, tax laws and accounting, knowledge of computer and specialized accounting programs. In addition, the accountant takes part in the inventory, actively interacts with banks and credit organizations, and engages in external economic activities.

Advantages of the profession

Most often, accountants work in offices, but nothing prevents from turning this work into a remote one - keeping records at home or, if the amount of work is small, the accountant can come to the workplace several times a month. This is a certain advantage - you can provide accounting services to small businesses, receiving additional income

Prospects for career growth: starting with the simplest position - an assistant accountant - you can grow up to the chief accountant of a large enterprise or financial director.

For people in this profession, experience is valuable, not age, so there is no danger of being out of work, reaching retirement age.

The need for personnel is always high, it is not difficult to find a job not only in a large city - bookkeepers are also needed in small settlements.

Ability, if desired, to move into a related profession: auditor, economist, financier, tax service specialist.

A good salary that grows with experience and additional skills.
